Notes

After graduating Starfleet academy he was stationed at McKinley as a shuttle pilot and small craft pilot. It fit his style to be his own boss like that. In fact he was rarely even noticed by the officers and VIPs that he ferried to and from. He became a regular sight, the big man flying the shuttle wearing a Stetson. He would have probably gone on to be the highest ranking shuttle pilot ever until the day the Paula Greene was set to launch on a mission and its primary Flight control officer was injured and unable to report for duty. Lt. Owens was commandeered by the Paula Greene due to his piloting abilities. It only took that one mission and Owens was hooked on flying the big ships. Upon returning from the mission he requested and was granted the FCO position on the Paula Green. He still runs shuttles for McKinley in between training missions.
