Notes

Maya is the fifth host of the Santoni symbiont. She decided to join SF after she met some officers who came to one of her father's famous parties. She went to the Academy on Earth, where she majored in Medicine and Counselling.

Her father is a prestigious musician and her mother is a teacher. Her sister Fira is currently at the SF Academy majoring in Sciences.

Maya was approved as a host and received a symbiont a few months after her graduation. The previous hosts of the Santoni symbiont were a chef named Quinn (male), an ambassador named Rife (male), an elementary school teacher named Trilax (female), and a Starfleet pilot named Cody (male).

Maya got married when she served onboard the USS Charger as their counsellor. She married Malcolm Mallory, a Terran from England, who was the Chief Engineering Officer of the ship. Together, they had a son named Sean. Malcolm and Sean died in a tragic accident when the family was on vacation on the Trill Homeworld. Since then, Maya had no relationships and decided to devote her time to her work.

She served on various ships mostly as a doctor or counsellor. She eventually became an executive officer. When Starfleet contacted her to take the commanding officer position of the USS Don Johnson, Maya accepted the challenge.

After a short stint on the Don Johnson as CO, Maya was recalled to the Trill Homeworld because her parents had been infected by a virus while visiting relatives on a nearby planet. Once her parents were out of danger, Maya asked to be put back to active duty. Since Starfleet didn't have a commanding position opened, Maya accepted to go serve on the USS Europa as an advisor.

After a few months, Maya was given command of the research ship USS Nightingale. She was eventually transferred on the USS Anamudi, a brand new ship, where she would take command of a newly formed crew and take the Anamudi for its maiden voyage.
